Cool Sea Breezes

The perfect cocktail for any tropical holiday involves a generous mix of blue skies, warm seas and hedonism. Combine this in equal parts with a large shot of sepoisepoi (the Sasak word for the cooling sea breezes that caress Lombok), crystal clear seas and a tall glass of something tasty with lots of ice cubes, and you will start to understand the synergy: it is no accident that the cabana bar sits blatantly staring at you pool side, displaying its sinful temptations within. As a tropical island escape, Villa Sepoi Sepoi on North Lombok's Tanjung Peninsula is almost a cliché with its six thatch-roofed bedrooms, swaying coconut trees and nearby volcano forming a stunning backdrop. We're not talking driftwood beach hut here; it's five-star service, chill-out movie room and a 100-square metre master suite, and the long and deserted white-sand beach that borders Sepoi Sepoi's extravagant lawns is calm and peaceful and provides ideal swimming conditions. This is just what Robinson Crusoe would have built if he had had all the days of the week working for him instead of just Friday. What more could you want?
